MORE GARDEN BEAUTY - LESS GARDEN LABOR
- With Stout Hybrid Daylilies

EMERGENCY EDITION - SPRING 1950

The demand for Stout Hybrid Daylilies exceeds the supply.

It is necessary to reduce sales until new crops develop.

In the meantime whatever orders result from the limited distribution of this "Emergency Circular" will be filled with top quality plants.

HOW TO SUCCEED WITH DAYLILIES

Daylilies require less care, less attention than any other desirable garden plant. They permit maximum garden enjoyment by supplying "More Beauty with Less Labor".

- 1-DO NOT PLANT TOO DEEPLY. Soil level 1" above junction roots and foliage.
- 2-Spread the roots when planting. Place soil between the roots. Water liberally.
- 3-Do not plant in heavily shaded or poorly drained areas.
- 4-Water new plants as may be necessary for the first week or so.
- 5-If you feed Daylilies use a complete fertilizer; lightly and often rather than heavily and seldom. Plant or transplant during spring, summer or fall.
- 6-As cut flowers, cut them just before the buds open.
- 7-Use Daylilies thruout the garden, wherever there's a gap; a difficult or dull spot. ("The more I have, the better I like them"). We ship daily from March to December.

FARR GUARANTEE--Free replacement of failures, first six months.

FARR NURSERY CO., WEISER PARK, PA.

NOTE This is an Emergency Edition of our Daylily List because we do not have enough mature Daylily plants remaining to support a new catalog before summer. Our Daylily sales have exceeded the rate of increase since the war. It has therefore become necessary to reduce our sales effort to this mimeograph List and to include only the varieties which exist in top quality and sufficient quantity.

Extensive plantings of new crops will mature and be in top quality by summer. They will support and justify the new catalog which we will issue in June. Meanwhile, you can order from this circular with assurance that your order will be filled completely and with top quality plants. Prices include Parcel Post Paid east of Denver, Colorado.
